Welcome

Welcome to the International Conference on Social Responsibility, Ethics and Sustainable Business!

Thank you for coming to the seventh conference hosted at BI Norwegian Business School. We are very pleased to have a great mix of delegates here from 22 countries. Attending today are academics, PhD students, as well as people working in the industry.

This year's conference theme is Value(s) and Corporate Responsibility in the 21st Century. Defining value in a sustainable setting is both an business opportunity and a challenge. In business studies, especially in marketing, the concept of value is most commonly understood as a subjective measure of the perceived utility of a product or service, and can be reduced to cost benefits calculations (Ravald and Gronroos, 1998). Elsewhere, however, values are the principles of behaviour or one's judgement of what is important in making a decision. Although business might be about the generation of value, ethical issues in business are therefore also tied to the moral values held by individuals (Forsyth, 1992). Porter and Kramer (2011) suggest that the purpose of organisations need to be redefined so that there is a focus not just on profit and value for money, but on creating shared value, such that economic value can also create value for society.

Beyond shared value, what concepts and practices might better explain and align both the value and values of corporate responsibility and offer solutions to individuals who are making corporate responsibility happen? In the next couple of days, we'll be presenting, listening and discussing papers that might provide some answers to this question.

A big thank you to everyone involved in the organisation today, to all our keynote speakers, and to all participants who travelled a long way to be here with us. We hope that you will find the sessions thought-provoking, and you will successfully network with colleagues from different universities. Enjoy the conference!

On behalf of the organising committee

Dr Georgiana Grigore, Henley Business School

Dr Alin Stancu, Bucharest University of Economic Studies

Professor Caroline Ditlev-Simonsen, BI Norwegian Business School
